Serving Christ together in Thailand

Esther is vice-president for spiritual and community life at Payap University in Chiang Mai, the first Christian university in Thailand. “This is a time of great social stress and change, and the privilege of helping prepare young leaders for the country is a great responsibility and honor,” she says. “Most of our staff and students are not Christian, but we live and work together in an educational institution established in the name of Christ. We have great opportunities to share God’s love daily.” Rob, a retired mission co-worker with more than 50 years of service in Thailand, teaches New Testament at Payap’s McGilvary School of Theology.

“I want to know Christ and the power of his resurrection and the sharing of his sufferings by becoming like him in his death, if somehow I may attain the resurrection from the dead.” Philippians 3:10-11
